Customer Reviews

"To help take the sweat out of finding a trail near you...buy one of the 60 Hikes Within 60 Miles guidebooks."--Newsweek (praise for the series)

Georgia hikers since 1980, Randy and Pam Golden moved to the Atlanta area from Orlando in 1984. Besides hiking, they love animals and outdoor adventure. They began writing about the trails they hike on for About North Georgia (ngeorgia.com) in 1995 and started their own Web site in 1998, GeorgiaTrails.com.

This book has become a constant resource for my weekends. I love how it is categorized several different ways to customize a hike by mood (traffic, distance, scenery). The directions are a little hard for me but I look them iPad in advance online. I also appreciate that the book states important side notes like entrance fees and restrooms!

I bought this book looking to find places to walk and hike near and in Atlanta. This book is full of hikes and parks I had no idea existed. If you are looking to find places to get outside in nature in Atlanta this is for you. It includes maps, difficulty level, and terrain.

Wonderful resource for walking and hiking in the Atlanta area. A bonus is the hikes and suggestions of places to go near the hikes that are featured!

Great book

Very clearly written, good suggestions!

Very good book. Descriptions and maps are good too.

Upon initial review of this book, the inside cover has a handy map of Atlanta and the surrounding areas. This map has the approximate locations of hikes, so that one may choose a hike from a specific area. Unfortunately, the few points on the map that I know and have hiked are grossly wrong. Some points are off by 30 or more miles. Here are examples of hikes that are located in the wrong place: Starr's Mill (Shown at Sweetwater Nongame) Sweetwater Nongame (Shown at Pine Mountain) Pine Mountain (Shown at Spirewell Bluff) Spirewell Bluff (Shown at Starr's Mill) With this quick glance and the glaring errors noted, I have immediately returned the book, not wanting to find out what further errors are waiting to be found.

great book for the Atlanta area.
