When I graduated from the University of California, Davis in 1975 with my degree in Botany I looked around and thought, "What next?" Knowing nothing about life except school, I elected to go on to graduate school at Humboldt State University to see if I could learn more about plants. So, I did. And I learned a few things about life too. But I never learned in college how to productively combine the four things I enjoy the most: Botany, Hiking, Teaching, and Writing. Since becoming an author in 1991 (over 700 feature magazine and newspaper stories, two novels, one World War II aviation history book and another on the way in 2017) I've easily found ways to combine two of my passions together, with writing being the glue that held things together. Sometimes I've been lucky to combine three of my passions. But never all four. Until now. I think you will like the result: Best Wildflower Hikes Western Washington.

Best Wildflower Hikes Western Washington combines the best aspects of hiking and wildflowers into one guide. Wildflowers can be appreciated along every trail Washington has to offer and on nearly every day of the year. This book not only tells you where to go but also what to look for-and best times for both the hike and peak wildflower blooms in the area. It features 40 hikes, focusing on the best wildflowers in western Washington, covering everything from the Olympic peninsula to Mount Rainier National Park and more. Combining the best aspects of hiking and wildflower viewing in one guide, Best Wildflower Hikes Western Washington takes serious or budding botanists to some of the best trails in the state to see all of the best blooms. It's all here in one guide: where and when to go and what to expect to find peak wildflower displays. In 40 hikes through western Washington explore wildflower habitats from the Puget Sound lowlands and estuaries to the Cascade Crest and from the Columbia River to the North Cascades along with Olympic and Mount Rainier National Parks. Love the photos of the flowers. I finally know what I am seeing on my hikes!
