Rozanne Lanczak Williams has taught for 14 years and writes extensively for the educational and children's book market since. Rozanne has published hundreds of books and poems for emergent readers, as well as materials for teachers and parents.

I use it with my 4-yr preschooler who could write independently. We use flash cards for quick review but she learns with this book. She gets to write it a few times while reading a page and identifying the words that she knows. Once she is done with writing those words, she gets to use her alphabet stamps to stamp the sight word and that makes learning sight words really exciting for her. It helps with learning sight words, writing skills and reading too. I would say a must have for little ones.

Just what I wanted.

My 5 year old girl actually does not dislike this book. Usually she is a little resistant to any workbook that involves writing. I let her write in color pencils. Less painful than other sight word books. :)

This book provides students opportunities to work on several skills together in context: handwriting, sight word memorizing, reading, and rhyming. My students enjoy working on the poems and are pleased that they are able to read most of the poem on their own, due to the high number of sight words incorporated into the poem's text. We also are able to review rhyming words with each poem.

Found samples on Pinterest and had to order my own!! I love using this instead of my other traditional poetry books. This year I'm teaching Kindergarten (1st grade for years prior to this year) and the students love learning to read these poems :)

Good for kids!

Very excited to use this during the school year.

Good book for kids to learn sight word. However, it is missing page number on the book.
