Policy Practice For Social Workers: New Strategies For A New Era (Updated Edition) (Connecting Core Competencies)

Synopsis

Introduction to Policy Practice Â Â  shows future social work practitioners how toÂ Â actively influence policy-making through lobbying, coalition building and running campaigns.Â Â  It helps them toÂ Â master social problem analysis and policy analysis and uses theoretical and empirical knowledge for the application of policy practice techniques.Â Â  Each chapter reflects and integrates the core competencies in the 2008 Educational Policy and Accreditation Standards (EPAS) set by the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE).Â Â  End-of-chapter assessment reinforces this integration, and MySocialWorkLab.com activities support the mastery of CSWE's core competencies.

Linda Cummins earned her MSW and PhD from the Ohio State University, College of Social Work and has been a social work educator for 21 years. She has served as Associate Professor in the School of Social Work at Barry University in Miami Shores, Florida; and Assistant Professor in the School of Social Work at Indiana University, and Illinois State University. Currently. She is a part-time faculty member for School of Public Service Leadership at Capella University.Â Â Â  Active in promoting the use of technology in social work education, Linda served as the chair of many technology committees during her career, an advisor to university deans and presidents, and consultant to universities.Â Â  She presents at national conferences on the Ethic of Care policy analysis approach; diversity in social work practice; teaching diversity in social work; and the use of technology in social work education. Linda is co-author of the book and interactive website, Policy practice for social workers: New strategies for a new era (Allyn & Bacon, 2011); and major contributor to Diana DiNittoâ€s 6th ed. of Social welfare: Politics and public policy (Allyn & Bacon, 2005). Her research background includes various homeless populations, community partnerships among social service agencies, and technology in social work education. She currently lives on a 22 acre farm on the South Coast of Oregon where she engages in organic and sustainable living, education, and community development, and maintains a spiritual coaching private practice. Katharine V. Byers, Ph.D. is Associate Professor and Director of the BSW Program, Indiana University School of Social Work in Bloomington. She also is chair of Influencing State Policy, an organization of social work educators helping students to learn how to influence state level policy processes. With an undergraduate degree from Wellesley College and MSW from the Heller School at Brandeis University, she had 10 years of practice experience, primarily with children with disabilities and their families, before returning for her Ph.D. from Indiana University. She has taught undergraduates for over twenty-five years, primarily in social policy and macro practice. Her research includes studies of the impact of welfare reform in Indiana, the human services work of the Indiana Township Trustees, and student activism. In 2004, she received the NASW Indiana Distinguished Chapter Service Award for her leadership in creating the first Legislative Education and Advocacy Day (LEAD) for social work students, faculty, and practitioners. Laura Pedrick is the Special Assistant to the Provost at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, where she oversees the Universityâ€s online and blended programs. She serves as co-chair of the Universityâ€s Online Program Council, directs the seed funding program for new online programs, and is project manager of UWMâ€s Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation Next Generation Learning Challenge grant. She is also a co-principal investigator on a large-scale Institute of Education Sciences-funded study of self-paced online learning. Laura is a co-author of Policy Practice for Social Workers: New Strategies for a New Era published by Pearson/Allyn & Bacon. Her background is in mass communication, and she holds a master's degree in journalism from the University of Minnesota.

I needed this book for a class and I received it promptly. Full of lots of great information about social policy! It was in new condition.

The book assistas with getting your head around policy practice and how social workers are able to influence or shape practice. It highlights social workers' roles as policy advocates and responsibility in shaping policy to promote social justice

I bought this book for my SW Policy class, for which I need access to Pearson's [...]. This edition of the book, although listed as part of the MySocialWorkLab series, does not include access to the site. Access to the site would be an extra $25. However, the book is available under a different ISBN code with access at no additional charge.

The book provided a good source of information. It allowed me to gain a good understanding of the Social work practice.

This is a great book to teach strategy for implementing new policies and for changing existing policy. Often students and grass root groups know what changes they want to see but have no knowledge on how to make it happen. Policy change is complicated and it takes precise steps to maneuver to a positive outcome. I especially enjoyed the "real life case examples" and the sections on critical thinking, ethical practices and coalition building.

Just as described.

Good condition

Lots of information
