Customer Reviews

Irresistible might be the best word for these new board books from Oxenbury. In I See, a toddler gets a close-up look at a butterfly and a squint at a distant airplane. In I Touch, there's the chance to compare Daddy's coarse beard with a slimy worm. In I Hear, a child listens to his Grandpa's wristwatch and his baby sister's yelp. And in I Can, there is quiet joy on a baby's face as he stretches his arms over his head and bends over to touch his toes. The "I" in the title of each book says it all; the toddler is at the center of his or her cozy universe. Oxenbury's rosy babies are characteristically winsome. A child's world is pure perception, and the artist has captured that world with simplicity and charm. We have all these books - I see, I touch, I hear, I can. My 22 month old LOVES them and pulls them out all the time. The books are small and just the right size for him. The illustrations are adorable. We talk a lot about what the little boy is seeing, hearing, touching, doing.

Great book for wee ones. The images are realistic and simple. I love that these books aren't busy like so many books. It helps my daughter focus on one thing at a time to have simple things to look at. This will also be great when she is first learning words.

Good product!

Just OK. Kind of boring with only a single word on each page. Illustrations are somewhat uninspired.

Helen Oxenbury writes excellent books for toddlers. My children always picked "I Can" and "I See" first to read at bedtime.

Cute series of books. I purchased several for my grandson's first birthday. The pages are thick cardboard and appear sturdy enough to withstand the demands of a toddler.

The children love it.

Purchased this as a gift for my grand son. I stacking up a few gift for when I visit to see the little one. Looking forward to reading to him.
